

Undoing color management changes

Downloading an element gives you the original version of the element. When you download, any color management changes and source profiles assigned to the element are discarded.

You can then reupload the original version of the element and apply new color management changes.