Media and devices

Each press run targets a media resource that represents a media configuration for a specific output device, or a virtual press-sheet-size media that allows the selection to be made downstream.