

file placeholder

A temporary input file that reserves run-list positions for the expected number of content pages, when the actual file is not yet available