device profile

A type of ICC profile that represents the relationship between colorant tint values of a device and the resulting color. It has two sets of color mapping tables: one set maps device colorant tint values to the profile color space (known as A2B tables) while the other set maps the profile color space to device colorant tint values (B2A tables).