

calibration

The act of setting equipment or software to a known state to produce consistent and predictable results. The purpose of color calibration is to achieve a consistent level of color quality.