

Manually aligning artwork to the die

In certain situations, you may want to move the artwork from the position to which it is snapped. You can manually align the artwork to the die. In some cases, you may be able to visually align the artwork to the die station by dragging it into place.

The Pandora software offers a number of viewing options that may make it easier to align the artwork to the die. For example, you can hide the die station numbers or show the artwork as keylines. The options are available from the View menu.
