

Screening workflows_ batch screening

A typical batch-screening workflow includes refining a file in Prinergy and outputting to proof, plate, or film. If required, you can set screening and a calibration curve.

Note: The screening mode in the output process templates default to Override All Screening—that is, the screening that is specified in the process template is applied to the output file.