

Alert messages

If Plate Builder encounters a problem during the plate-building process, one of the following messages may appear:

Alert message	Possible causes
One or more selected objects are already in this separation. Adding them again may change their appearance. Are you sure you want to continue?	You already added the selected object to the separation, or an object in the selection was colored with the separation in the original desktop software.
All selected objects are small enough to be ignored.	All of the objects that you selected are smaller than the values in the Small Objects area of the Add Selected Objects to Separation dialog box, so Plate Builder will not add the object to the separation.
Objects have been added to this separation. Are you sure you want to delete it?	You are deleting a separation that contains objects that you have added.
