

You can add your own content to the Learning Center and position it in the existing structure, or create a new section with your own structure and content. You add learning content in the form of learning topics. You change the structure of the Learning Center by adding categories and rearranging them. Then you add your learning topics wherever you want them to appear in the structure.

You can customize the Learning Center in the following ways:

- Add your own content in the form of learning topics
 - Delete existing learning topics, but not edit them
 - Insert a new learning topic into the existing structure
 - Change the structure by deleting, moving, or modifying categories and sections
- Note: When you delete a category, all the content within the category is deleted, including subcategories.
- Add new categories or whole sections, and then add your own content
