

additive color model

A color system in which the picture is composed of a combination of red (R), green (G), and blue (B) light transmitted by the original subject. This system is effective for monitors and televisions but not for print. Scanners normally scan in RGB, which is then converted to CMYK for printing.